

NICK NEWBERRY
ARTIST | PRINCIPAL

Every project needs a stylist. For that we have Nick Newberry, a skilled designer who lives through geometric visions at a birds-eye view. A conceptual designer with more than 35 years of experience in architecture, planning and artistic design, Nick learned his craft from his father who worked as an Art Director for Universal Studios. But rather than designing the set for the next blockbuster movie, Nick found his passion in translating the visions of the architect in the land planning context.

From community visioning, architectural and theme development, to community art, Nick places a strong emphasis on maintaining continuity through the project to the benefit of everyone involved. For Nick, every good plan needs a story behind it. His approach includes recognizing and working with the various talents involved in developing a project and then utilizing his skills as a sketch artist to help find the visions.

In his free time, Nick is an accomplished writer and musician. A self-proclaimed Beatlemaniac, Nick hopes one day to channel the voice of Roy Orbison. Until then, he is content channeling Mick Jagger.